SECTION 01

Introduction

1.1 This Bonus & Credit Policy (the "Policy") governs every bonus, credit, rebate, cashback or other promotional incentive offered by Docree Demo (the "Company").

1.2 A bonus is a discretionary promotional benefit. It is not a deposit, it is not client money, and no Client has a right to receive one.

RISK WARNING

A bonus increases the margin available for trading, which increases both potential profit and potential loss. Trading with bonus credit magnifies risk. Clients should not treat bonus credit as free capital.

SECTION 02

Definitions

Bonus

A promotional amount added to a trading account by the Company, usable as margin but not withdrawable as cash until the applicable conditions are met.

Credit

A bonus recorded separately from the cash balance, which supports margin but is not part of withdrawable equity.

Turnover Condition

The traded volume, expressed in lots, that must be completed before a bonus or the profit derived from it becomes withdrawable.

Qualifying Volume

Traded volume that counts toward a turnover condition. Volume from trades excluded under this Policy does not count.

Equity

Account balance plus or minus unrealized profit and loss on open positions, including any credit.

SECTION 03

Eligibility

3.1 A bonus is available only to Clients who hold a fully verified live account and who are not resident in a jurisdiction where the Company does not offer services or where promotional incentives are restricted by law.

3.2 Unless a specific promotion states otherwise, one bonus is permitted per Client, per household, per device and per IP address. This includes any linked, duplicate or jointly controlled accounts.

3.3 Each promotion may carry its own terms covering minimum deposit, eligible account types, eligible instruments and a claim window. Those terms apply in addition to this Policy, and prevail where they conflict with it.

3.4 Employees of the Company, their immediate families, and introducing brokers in respect of their own accounts, are not eligible unless expressly stated.

SECTION 04

How Bonus Credit Works

4.1 A bonus is applied to the trading account as credit. It raises the equity available to support margin, allowing larger positions than the cash balance alone would permit.

4.2 Bonus credit is not withdrawable cash. It cannot be transferred to another account, assigned to a third party, or withdrawn in its own right at any time.

4.3 Losses are deducted first from the cash balance and then from bonus credit, unless the promotion's own terms provide otherwise.

SECTION 05

Turnover Conditions

5.1 Profit generated with the assistance of a bonus becomes withdrawable only once the applicable turnover condition has been met. The condition is stated when the bonus is offered and is visible in the Client Area.

5.2 Unless stated otherwise in the promotion, the following volume does not count toward a turnover condition:

- Positions opened and closed within a very short interval, consistent with volume padding rather than genuine trading.
- Fully or substantially hedged positions, including positions hedged across linked accounts.
- Volume on instruments excluded by the promotion's own terms.

- Trades voided or reversed under the Customer Agreement.

5.3 Progress toward a turnover condition is calculated by the Company's systems, and those records are conclusive in the absence of manifest error.

SECTION 06

Withdrawing Funds While Holding a Bonus

6.1 A withdrawal requested before the turnover condition is met will normally result in removal of the bonus and of any profit attributable to it, with only the Client's own deposited funds remaining available.

6.2 The Company will tell the Client the effect on the balance before such a withdrawal is processed, so the request can be withdrawn if preferred.

6.3 A Client's own deposited funds are never forfeited for failing to meet a turnover condition. Only the bonus, and profit attributable to the bonus, are affected.

SECTION 07

Bonus Removal and Expiry

7.1 A bonus may be removed where:

- The promotion's validity period expires before the condition is met.
- The Client requests a withdrawal before the condition is met.
- The account becomes dormant for the period stated in the Customer Agreement.
- The account is closed, or the business relationship ends.
- This Policy, or the Customer Agreement, has been breached.

7.2 Removing a bonus reduces the equity supporting open positions, which may bring the account closer to a margin call or stop-out. Clients should monitor margin whenever a bonus is due to expire.

SECTION 08

Margin, Stop-Out and Negative Balance

8.1 Where bonus credit contributes to margin, a stop-out may be triggered on equity that includes that credit. A Client relying on bonus credit for margin is exposed to a faster stop-out if the bonus is removed.

8.2 Where negative balance protection applies, it applies to the Client's own funds. A bonus is not restored after a stop-out.

SECTION 09

Prohibited Conduct and Bonus Abuse

9.1 The following are treated as bonus abuse and are a breach of this Policy:

- Opening multiple or duplicate accounts, or using another person's identity, to claim a bonus more than once.
- Hedging positions between accounts, or with another broker, to meet a turnover condition without market exposure.
- Trading with no genuine intention of taking market risk, solely to convert credit into withdrawable cash.
- Coordinating with other Clients to exploit a promotion.
- Giving false information to establish eligibility.

9.2 Where abuse is identified, the Company may cancel the bonus and any profit derived from it, void the affected trades, suspend or close the account, and decline further promotions. The Client's own deposited funds remain withdrawable, subject to the usual compliance checks.

SECTION 10

Company Discretion

10.1 The Company may offer, decline, vary, suspend or withdraw any promotion at any time, and may decline a bonus to a particular Client without giving reasons.

10.2 Withdrawing a promotion does not affect a bonus already correctly credited, which continues under the terms in force when it was granted.

SECTION 11

Tax

11.1 Any tax arising on a bonus or on profit derived from it is the Client's own responsibility. The Company does not provide tax advice.

SECTION 12

Amendments and Contact

12.1 The Company may amend this Policy at any time. The current version is published on the Company's website and applies to bonuses credited after it takes effect.

12.2 Questions about a bonus or a turnover condition should be sent to hello@docree.com before trading on the credited funds.
